The cat sweaters my sister made for Christmas (see my post for Jan 8th) were a huge hit. Now she's added another variant to the collection -- a sweater for her young grandson, who loves cats too.

I really like the peekaboo theme on this sweater -- two cats peeking out from pocket and placket, and another peering above the bottom ribbing on the back. I know her grandson is going to love this one.

This sweater clearly coordinates with the other ones she made, but like each of them, it's got its own unique charm. I wonder what she'll work on next?
